

Peulat Cohort: First-Day Getting-to-know Your Tent-Mates

Ice breaker activity because the cohorts were full of campers from different friend groups.

The campers then made their own personal schedules for the day by day for them to put up by their beds.

The campers were then asked to sit with people they thought they did not know as well as others. The counselor gave prompts for things for the pairs of two to talk about. After a few of the prompts the couples were asked to write a joint story/poem/haiku about an experience or something they both had in common. At the end of this couples who wanted to be allowed to share or read the thing they wrote together.

Materials: 1/2 sheets of construction paper for the schedules, lined paper and pens or markers
