

Once upon a time there was a woman of Valour
A woman of courage. A woman of Strength.
A woman of big ideas + bigger actions

She had a blue ox named Babe, and roamed around the country fighting Crime. Justice was her calling, and Zionism was her bread + butter. She spread her love for Israel all through Ireland

She was the founder + 1st Prez of the women's Zionist Congress.
She killed herself a bear when she was only 3. She once wrestled an alligator with one hand tied behind her back.
She made the Hessel run in less than 3 paces.

She once ate 18 Friday night brownies in 1 sitting.
She once crossed a stage on a telegraph wire to rescue a child when a house was on fire. She used to darn her socks in the night when there was nobody there.

She once had a job working as a mild-mannered reporter for the Daily Planet. She came up with the slogan "Who's the Beef?"
She made outrageous claims like she invented the question mark.
Legend tells that she was raised by Moroccan rattle snakes.

She created the Sabes vaccine. She invented the crossword puzzle. She never lost a Scrabble game in her life.

Some of the things we have just told you are true. Many are lies.
Nevertheless, she is our heroine + patroness.

Ladies + gentlemen, we are proud to present

The Second Annual Evelyn Dayet Rubinstein Shavuah of z'at Competition!
