

Yom Expert

This yom is simple yet complicated. The boys and girls are separate for because of JCADA, so from 10:00-11:30 is the girls and from 12:00-1:30 it's the boys. The yom is the same for both groups and goes like this:

Doctor: the chanichim will be split up into four groups and play Pin-the-Bandaid on the patient. The patients are the weird wooden people that we found in the ivrit classrooms. Then (still in the groups) they will play a big game of memory against another group. The memory game is English words for body parts and the corresponding Hebrew word.

Lawyers: Pancakes v Waffles. It won't be exactly like a court trial. It will be that the pancake and the waffle are two suspects and the respective groups need to convince va'ad yom meyuchad that their respective breakfast food is better than the other. We should push the idea that they should be creative in their explanations.

Chef: The groups will compete in a cookie decorating contest again judged by counselors.

BREAKFAST MAKING

Group 1/2. Making Dough for Pita / Running Dough to Medurah

Each member of group 1 and 2 have partners within their groups and one partner is making dough and the other is running the dough to the Ilanot medurah spot for the Group 3/8 to cook. It is a competition between the two groups and between the partners. (The campers should want to be the best partner duo of making dough and running it and a counselor will keep a tally.)

Group 3. Cooking pita

Group 4. Setting the tables (competition for nicest set)

Group 5. Cutting cucumbers

Group 6. Cutting tomatoes

Group 7. Putting ingredients together and mixing with olive oil

Group 8. Cooking pita

HUMAN SHUFFLEBOARD WRITE-UP

Two teams compete against each other on one-half of a tennis court. The object of the game is to acquire the most points over the course of five rolls.

A roll consists of the roller pushing the scooter with a rollee on it towards the net. The roller may not cross the baseline, but most push the scooter and the rollee from behind the baseline.

If the roll ends with the scooter not inside any of the scoring spaces, then the turn is over and there is nothing more to do. If the roll ends up with the scooter inside a scoring area, then a chalk "X" is placed on that location. If on a future roll (either of the opposing team or the same team), the scooter goes over the "X", then that "X" is crossed out.

At the end of five rolls, the points are totaled and the team with the most points is the winner.

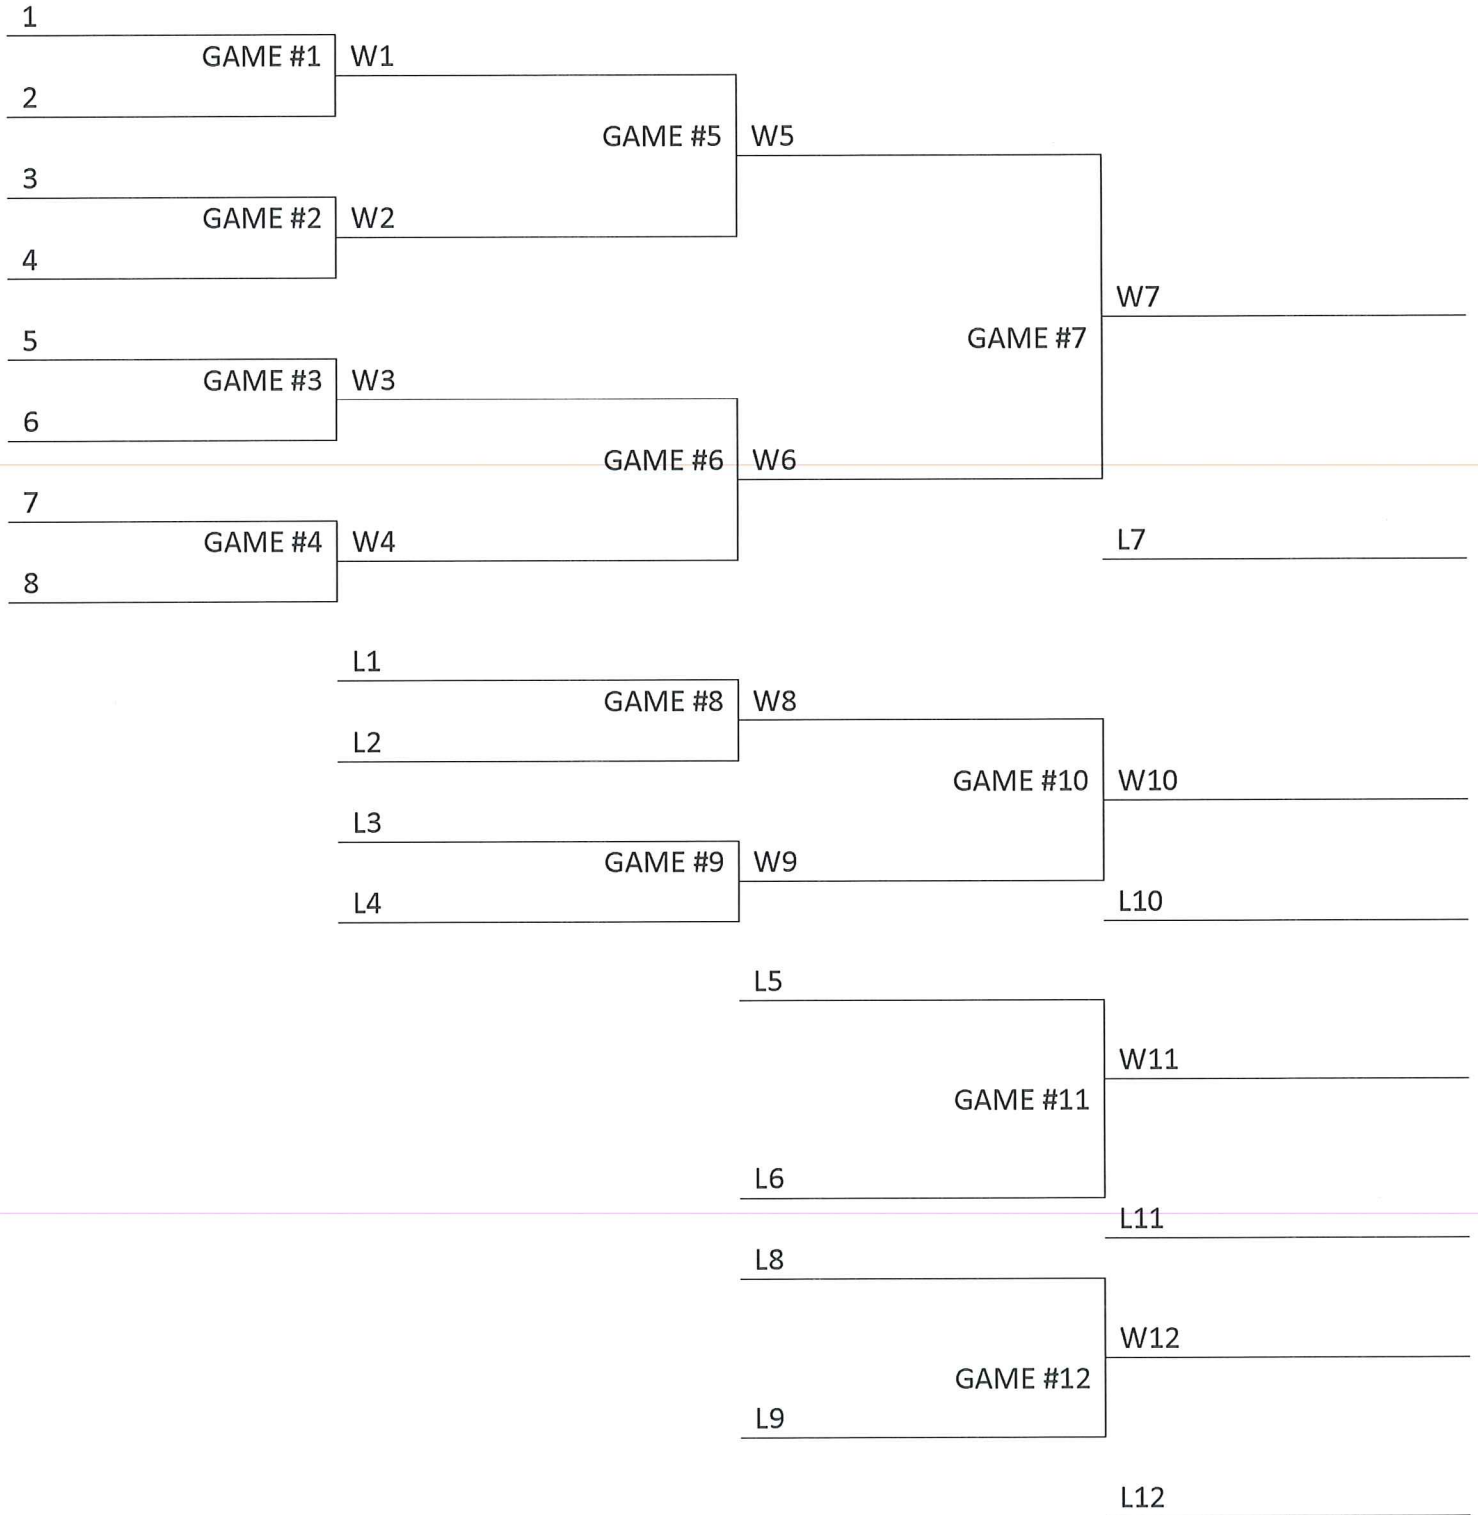

In the event of a tie, a tiebreaker will consist of each team getting one roll to come as close as possible to landing on a target. The team who gets closer to the target is the winner.

The games will be played in a tournament bracket to determine how many Evelyn Bucks each team is awarded. To avoid confusion, for the second game, use a "Δ" instead on an "X", then a "O", then...

CREATING A MENU AND SPECIALTY DISH

Hamburger
Fish taco
Pizza
Pasta

These main dishes must be on the menu in some form. They should come up with the ingredients/toppings for each main menu item. And must be written on a paper and saved for the designing a boat activity.

The specialty item will be introduced after they finish the basic menu. For this they will be given 3 ingredients and be told to create and name a signature dish for their ship's menu.

If there is time they will present if not judges will walk around to the different tables

Money will be awarded

AUCTION

Matt will be leading the auction

Using the money they have accumulated the groups will decide as a team how much money they want to bid on certain items. They do not know the items before each one is announced and then bid on. They also do not get into bidding wars. They simply decide on a price and the winning group gets it with no fight.
